March 24, 1993

Richard Gallen
260 Fifty Avenue
New York City
New York 10001

Dear Mr. Gallen

+ Enclosed are chapters 11-35 of Harold Weisberg's Never Again manuscript. I have previously sent the chapters preceding these, plus the preface and the forward.

I would again reiterate my impression of the manuscript and its importance for this subject. Before I would do this however I would call your attention to another extremely important dimension, not readily understood and that must be understood to appreciate fully the quality of the work.

For each chapter Harold has full documentation to the sources, many indeed almost all of them original documents. Within the text many of these are mentioned or referenced. The importance for this is it gives the validation stamp of authenticity and imparts credibility to the argument as no other method in this subject matter area. While I have lightly touched on this for the sake of bevity in a letter of transmittal please be assured that the references are the rock foundation upon which this manuscript rests.

Again, I am fully aware of the literature on this subject; most of the books on the assassintion I have read, many I have written 10-20 page critical reviews; I also know the subject matter of the murder and its investigation and in a way few today can or have for that matter. This means I have carefully checked and related the literature to the reality of the murder. Harold's manuscript stands alone.

I further believe that this book will revolutionize the subject matter and forever cast the question into the proper societal direction. In years to come it will be seen as a watershed volume. Given the years of research, sometimes 18 hours a day in the archives for years on end it is unique.

I would add that his personal following and reputation is enormous and alone would sell a book.

I could comment at great length and in detail, but my purpose is to send the manuscript to you so I will close.

Sincerely,

David R. Wrone
Professor of HIstory
UWSP
Stevens Point, WI 54481